Posted on December 1, 2014 by Mona Daelemans

On the morning of World AIDS Day, Health Minister Terry Lake visited the Dr. Peter Centre in Vancouver to serve breakfast to AIDS patients. The Dr. Peter Centre is known around the world for its leading role in the research and treatment of the virus.

Speaking to clients and staff of the Dr. Peter Centre, Minister Lake emphasized the leading role of British Columbia in fighting the virus.

“Let’s be optimistic, because right here in British Columbia we are leading the world to an HIV-free world. I am confident that we will continue that trend, helping us lead the world in reaching the United Nations 90-90-90 treatment target, which has a goal of ending the AIDS epidemic worldwide by 2030.”

On World AIDS Day, the world takes time to remember those who have died of the disease, to mark the progress in HIV and AIDS treatment and to support those who are living with HIV.
