Message from the Executive Director

What a wild year it has been - a year of unpredictability, fear and uncertainty and yet the Dr. Peter Centre is stronger than ever.

As an organization we are incredibly resilient - born out of a pandemic we know how to evolve in an ever changing environment. We work at the intersection of numerous crisis: COVID-19, HIV/AIDS, the overdose epidemic, mental health, homelessness and poverty.

COVID-19 is top of mind for many. During a period of closures throughout the community, the Dr. Peter Centre moved quickly to ensure as much continuity as possible. We have been operating under the strictest health protocols in the province - integrated multiple new health orders; attended hundreds of coordination meetings and increased onsite health protocols. It paid off - I am proud to say that we never closed the facility because of COVID-19. In fact, we increased our operating hours as we opened for statutory holidays for the first time in our history.

The overdose epidemic however has taken its toll. Of the 14 participant deaths so far in 2021, 10 are directly related to overdose. We have not escaped the grim reality of a poisoned drug supply in BC.

Challenges only create a greater resolve within the Centre. Over the past year we started numerous new programs to meet the needs of our participants: Indigenous cultural programming, a women's evening program, a Hepatitis C micro elimination project and have expanded our iOATS (intravenous opioid agonist therapy) to 20+ participants.

On a national level we continue to be recognized as a leader within the harm reduction community. Over the past year we created two new national programs at the bequest of the Public Health Agency of Canada. The "HUB" addresses issues pertaining to the integration of harm reduction services within abstinence based organizations and our second project is to identify best practices for ensuring marginalized populations have access to COVID-19 vaccinations.

From an administration standpoint, we have undertaken numerous business systems upgrades and overdue building repairs. All the while ensuring a healthy diversification of funding sources. And the staff - I am in awe and gratitude. They are dedicated, smart, adaptable and tenacious.

The need for the Dr. Peter Centre has never been greater. Locally, our participants need a place they can connect with others and tend to their bodies and spirit. Nationally, our expertise is needed to create a future that would otherwise not exist. We will continue to evolve and address the needs of the multiple communities we serve.

Message from the Chair of the Board

What a year we have all had through 2020 and into 2021. If there is any period that I have been most grateful to be Board Chair of the Dr. Peter Centre, it is this one. The amount of resilience and change I have seen at the Dr. Peter Centre has been incredible as we continue to navigate through such an unusual time. It has been truly inspirational.

The strength of the team at the Dr. Peter Centre has never been as evident as it is now. They have not only kept the Centre going with HIV, COVID-19 and the overdose epidemic affecting our community, but they have managed to grow and expand on what they were doing before COVID-19.

The ability to continue doing this life changing work has been made possible with the outstanding support of individuals like you. The difference you are making not only impacts the participants at the Dr. Peter Centre, but it also affects the wider community, so thank you.

The support and governance from the Board of Directors has been outstanding. This group of people provided us with incredible knowledge at a time when we were in the dark about the best course of action.

We extend our deepest thanks and gratitude to our departing directors, some of whom stayed on a bit past their commitment to support the Centre this past year, they include Craig Donnelly, Jennifer Davies, Jonathan Fowlie, Andrew Hiscox, and Kibben Jackson. The knowledge we have gained from these leaders in their field has been immense and immeasurable at such an uncertain time.

We were also privileged to welcome Tassan Sung and Stacey Handley earlier this year and most recently Chris Marrett, and Gloria Loree.

I am incredibly proud to be a part of the team at the Dr. Peter Centre who have not only persevered through an incredibly difficult time, but have made the safety and wellbeing of their community their priority. They have continued to provide a family and community for those who need it the most.

Day Health Program

Kitchen

When Canada went into lockdown in March 2020, people still needed connection, support and food. Our kitchen team moved quick and created new protocols to ensure the safety of our participants and staff while continuing to provide nutritious meals.

This included stricter procedures for sanitization, implementing take out options, adapting seating to meet changing health orders, reorganizing how we offer food in the residence and staffing up to ensure we had the people required. Most of these changes are welcome improvements and best practices.

The kitchen team added a few more of their own touches this past year: we bake our own bread, make our peanut butter and condiments and have regular Indigenous inspired menus.

Hepatitis C Program

Many of our participants have been living with untreated Hepatitis C for many years. In the past, treatments for Hepatitis C were very long, not always effective, and had a lot of negative side effects. New treatments are shorter, highly effective, and have fewer side effects. In response, we have initiated a micro-elimination project. It is our goal that all participants know their Hepatitis C status, understand treatment options and undertake those if they desire.

To do this we have weekly point of care testing clinics and education, support groups, liver health days which includes education material, point of care screening, liver scanning and blood draws. No one needs to go untreated for Hepatitis C at the Dr. Peter Centre.

Evening Programs

Our Men's Evening Program momentarily paused at the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic, and then opened after a few months with minor changes.

In spite of restrictions, the program continues to grow weekly with a list of over 75 participants registered, and around 20 men attending the evening program each week. Participants have built incredibly strong relationships with one another, have a nutritious meal together, and learn new skills such as art, music, and gardening. It is an important moment for peers to connect in what has otherwise been an increasingly isolated world for them.

Last year we started a Women's Evening Program to reach out to women who have little or no connection to care. It is modeled on the successful Men's Evening Program with additional attention to the clinical support components.

This population is a challenge to engage and the majority of our participants have experienced racism, judgement, and stigma from the health care system, so we have created a safe environment where the women can ask the nurse any medical questions they might have or ask for their help on navigating the health care system.

iOATS (intravenous opioid agonist therapy) Program

The Dr. Peter Centre is the only community organization in North America to offer iOATS treatment to participants with severe opioid use disorder. Over the past 2.5 years we have had to forge new ground in a morally charged and highly regulated space.

This year we introduced diacetylmorphine as a treatment option and it has been highly successful in meeting the needs of the participants. We have also been sharing our success and challenges (in real time) with organizations across the country.

Indigenous Programming

At the Dr. Peter Centre, approximately 30% of our day health participants identify as first nations or Indigenous. It has become increasingly clear that we have an opportunity to better support this group and to provide additional ways of participating and healing at the Centre.

Our approach is to integrate reconciliation and Indigenous learnings at all levels of the organization and for this we have engaged outside consultants and internal peers to provide context and an Indigenous lens. We understand that this is a process and not a matter of 'one and done' training. We are committed to ensuring that staff and board volunteers have access to training and learning.

For our participants, we initiated numerous Indigenous cultural programs. We currently have three Indigenous cultural workers who come to the Centre each week. This allows for a wide variety of knowledge and activities including: drum making, weaving, smudges, workshops, medicines and the re-introduction of Indigenous skills and learnings that may have been lost. We have also started a program for Indigenous women where our participants can engage in Indigenous art therapy, cultural teachings, cultural celebrations, and enjoying Indigenous meals.

We have recently entered into a partnership with CAAN (Canadian AIDS Aboriginal Network) through a Copper Ceremony. This ceremony, which is used to initiate alliances, is a foundation for our work with CAAN on a 5-year project co-creating harm reduction tools and interventions for Indigenous organizations, communities and those who serve them.

Residence Program

The Dr. Peter Centre residence continues to provide unique residential care for people with complex medical and social needs.

To date we have not had an outbreak of COVID-19 in the residence. This is primarily as a result of the incredible capability of the nursing staff, housekeeping, food services, recreational therapists, and care aides and their diligence to ensure they can safely continue caring for the residents at the Dr. Peter Centre. On top of this, the acceptance from our participants of the changes and tightening of the rules has been outstanding and would have been incredibly difficult to implement without their help.

In early January 2021 with support from our Pharmacy partners Shoppers Drug Mart we initiated a COVID-19 vaccine clinic on site where we successfully provided vaccines to all residents and subsequently opened the site to staff as well.

"(I've) been staying here for many months now to regain my strength and overall health back to regaining my confidence and ability (and hoping to contribute to society again...fingers crossed). It's been a long journey for me having to go through... Consider yourself lucky if you are accepted and living and taken care of from all the staff (especially the nurses) and don't swear or cuss at them no matter what.."

The HUB

One of the bigger projects from 2020 was the Urgent Public Health Need Site HUB (or the “HUB” for short). This Community of Practice, funded by Health Canada was born out of a request from the federal government for the Dr. Peter Centre to connect with organizations who are facing the dual public health emergencies of COVID-19 and the overdose crisis.

The need for the HUB came about as a result of service changes during the pandemic such as services closing, limited spaces in supervised consumption sites and emergency shelters moving to COVID-19 hotels. Organizations needed new models to support people who use drugs during the pandemic.

As a response to this, the Dr. Peter Centre’s Knowledge Translation and Evaluation (KTE) team quickly set up a national, bilingual Community of Practice which included regular group video calls, virtual trainings, a website to share information on relevant topics, and a community blog.

Over the last financial year this project has seen incredible participation with 207 registrations to join this Community of Practice, 90 (100% of available positions) registrations for online training opportunities, and the website being viewed almost 5,000 times.

The Vaccine Project

Similar to The HUB, the federal government invited the Dr. Peter Centre to develop a COVID-19 Vaccine Project in January 2021 to address vaccine hesitancy, as they predicted that certain populations, including people who use drugs and Indigenous communities, were at risk of being left behind by the traditional health care system.

The Vaccine Project is comprised of three components, community practice calls, a website with resources, and $15,000 micro grants for other service providers serving at-risk populations. These components will allow us and other front line organizations to fill the gaps in care relating to the COVID-19 vaccine and share the findings with the community of practice.

This is the first time we have been given the opportunity and have been entrusted by Health Canada to give grants to other organizations that are doing work on the front line of the COVID-19 vaccine roll out. As a result of these grants, these organizations plan to deliver a variety of community led vaccine uptake strategies, develop trauma informed and culturally appropriate communications strategies, transportation services, and peer-led outreach strategies to enhance connections with people in our community experiencing multiple barriers to care.

Dr. Peter Centre Fundraisers - with a twist

Pride Cocktail Kickoff

2020 saw the first Pride Cocktail Kickoff 'at home'. Guests traded the usual rooftop cocktail party for an at home cocktail and meal delivery kit by The Lazy Gourmet, and virtual entertainment that provided colour and music for a mini at home party.

In total we raised over $32,000 and we came together with friends and supporters to celebrate Vancouver Pride with all the love and energy that it deserves.

Our heartfelt thanks to the Pride Cocktail Kickoff committee – Kevin, Ryan, Gary and Sid who showed great leadership in uncertain times and produced an event that provided cheer and connection when we all needed it, while also making a substantial fundraising gift to the Centre.

Passions

Like many events, Passions looked a little different in 2020. Instead of a large in-person gathering, we pivoted towards a 'gratitude campaign'. We encouraged patronage and support for the many local restaurants that have participated in Passions over the years, and who were suffering due to COVID-19 dining restrictions.

We invited our community to engage with a social media campaign that encouraged supporters to dine at Passions restaurants and share their love online via their personal social channels. During this period more than 8,500 individuals engaged with our social media. Thank you to our longstanding Passions supporters and our dedicated committee.

Life Commitment – presented by Nicola Wealth Management

Much like our other events held in 2020, Life Commitment had to be restructured to accommodate changing COVID-19 restrictions. With a plan to host the event virtually and in small groups at various homes, restriction updates the week of the event meant that on the night Life Commitment dinners were held in private dining areas at The Hotel Georgia and Vancouver Club, as well as in the living rooms of many at-home supporters.

Guests in their various locations were joined by a live broadcast from hosts Gloria Macarenko and Fred Lee, who brought to life a lively auction and shared the Dr. Peter Centre message with the participating guests.

Despite the unusual format of Life Commitment in 2020, our community and family of dedicated and incredibly supportive philanthropists showed outstanding support for the Dr. Peter Centre, helping us raise $550,000 on the night – our most successful year to date! Thank you to our Life Commitment Committee Tassan Sung, Michelle Addison, and Shannon Wilson for leading us through an unprecedented year of planning, and for garnering tremendous support for the Centre.

Community Supporters

Our friends in the local community

At a time when businesses are struggling, our community of supporters have been incredible as they continued to support us and have gone even further than we have seen before.

Early in the COVID-19 pandemic, when we switched to providing takeaway meals and beverages, Starbucks Canada provided us with to-go cups, lids, and utensils as well as boxes filled with gifts for our participants at Christmas time.

One of our long time partners, Shoppers Drug Mart contributed to fundraising opportunities such as our clothing drive and continuously checked in on the wellbeing of the staff at the Dr. Peter Centre throughout 2020.

Davie Street Pharmacy provided the Dr. Peter Centre with sanitizer, wipes, and masks all throughout 2020.

And our friends at Telus provided us with iPads to ensure our participants and staff were able to keep up with the rest of the world, virtually.

Countless local acts of kindness led to meal drop-off's for participants, clothing donations and a ripple of financial and in-kind support for the Centre, our participants and our staff.

We're tremendously grateful to our neighbours, for showing up for us through 2020, and inspiring others to do so too.

Thank you to our amazing donors
